

Riverina Water Chair to help shape future of water supply in regional NSW

Monday February 11 2019

Riverina Water Chair Greg Verdon has been appointed to the recently created Local Water Utility Policy Advisory Group.

Established by Local Government NSW (LGNSW), the group provides advice on policy and advocacy matters.

The panel is made up of representatives from NSW council owned and operated water utilities. Its main aims are to:

- Increase the level of engagement with key government, industry and other stakeholders, particularly in relation to water supply issues affecting regional communities
- Ensure Local Government NSW can provide a coordinated sector-wide response to emerging issues and trends on behalf of council-run water utilities
- Enable local government to present a unified direction on the strategic objectives and other policy issues related to local water utilities
